The Children's Space is built to be a space filled with color, designed to help kids be curious and find comfort. The goal is to nurture their imagination and help with early learning. Pops of color help kids get in an energetic mindset, ready to learn. Soft seating, flexible furniture, and tactile surfaces invite play and exploration. Artwork by Sam Zimmerman, an Indigenous Ojibwe artist, brings rich cultural storytelling to this space, fostering a connection to both heritage and the environment. This art also helps fill the space with color. Additionally, Skyline Design's Kids Glass is used as a playful and interactive wallcovering. Featuring cheerful animal illustrations, it adds visual excitement and serves as a doodle-friendly surface, encouraging creativity and hands-on engagement.
